Rutu has a rare blend of deep scientific understanding of computational language processing with the strength of applying it to challenging language understanding problems in big data today, especially unstructured data.

She has particular strength in designing and leading the development of pragmatic solutions to very challenging text understanding problems at the forefront of data analytics.

Dr. Naveen Ashish Associate Professor of Informatics University of Southern California